

BOARD OF REALTY REGULATION NEWSLETTER

VOLUME 3. ISSUE 1.....JANUARY 2011

Status and Treatment of Expired Listing Agreements

The original listing agreement must be entered into before acting on behalf of the seller in any licensed capacity and must contain the licensee's duties and responsibilities, a statement regarding dual agency, the type of agency relationship disclosed, the signature(s) of the seller(s), the signature of the licensee, and the date of the disclosure (MCA 37-51-314(6)).

MCA 37-51-313 (10)(a) states:

"The agency relationship of a buyer agent, seller agent, or dual agent continues until the earliest of the following dates:

- (i) Completion of performance by the agent
- (ii) The expiration date agreed to in the listing agreement or buyer broker agreement; or
- (iii) The occurrence of any authorized termination of the listing agreement or buyer broker agreement.

Best Practice:

If you and your seller plan to extend your listing agreement beyond its original expiration, do so before it expires. If a listing agreement does expire, seller's limited agency expires as well, and a new agency disclosure should be given and a new listing agreement should be entered into to create a new listing and establish the agency relationship between agent and seller. Please also remember that if the listing agreement is not extended, a licensee's obligation to the seller regarding confidentiality remains in place.

DID YOU KNOW: HOME ENERGY LABELS ARE REQUIRED BY LAW

By Paul Tschida, Montana Department of Environmental Quality

Consumers find efficiency labels on new cars and appliances and should also find one in new houses.

Since 1995 Montana has had a statewide energy code and a requirement that every new residence receive an energy component label to be placed on the main electrical breaker panel. The label is a way for builders to self-certify that the house meets the minimum code levels for insulation, window and heating system efficiencies, and other energy features required in new houses. The label gives house buyers an additional tool to use in making their purchase decision, and ensures that important information about the house's energy efficiency features is not lost and is available to subsequent owners.

Montana law and the current Montana Energy Code require that an energy efficiency component label be completed and signed by the builder or representative, and placed in or on the electrical panel box.

The Montana Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) estimates that only about 20 percent of new homes located outside of building code jurisdictions — normally outside city limits — are receiving a label. Outside of building code jurisdictions there is no government inspection or enforcement process for the statewide energy code. However, the house must still meet the energy code requirements and the builder is required to certify that it complies by filling out and signing the label.

For the past five years Montana electrical inspectors have been delivering a Montana Energy Code Summary booklet that includes information about the labeling requirement, and a label to all new houses outside of building jurisdictions. Inside building code jurisdictions, local building inspectors should inspect for code compliance and the placement of the labels.

The Montana Department of Environmental Quality suggests that real-estate personnel look for the label in new houses they are presenting and if the label is not present, request one from the builder.

This label lists the Montana 2010 energy code prescriptive path requirements. Other levels for code compliance may come from the web based computer analysis REScheck™ available from the U.S. Department of Energy at no cost at www.energycodes.gov.

Disclosing Liens and Encumbrances: Holmes v. Summer

Case Summary and Commentary by Gene Allison, Board of Realty Regulation Attorney

A California Court of Appeals has ruled that a seller's agent had a duty to disclose to buyers the existence of liens and encumbrances that far exceeded the contract price for the residential property. That duty actually outweighed the agent's duty of confidentiality to her client.

The buyers had entered into an agreement to purchase the seller's residential property for a price of $749,000. The contract terms called for the seller to convey the property free and clear of all encumbrances. The buyers were unaware that the property was actually subject to first, second and third deeds of trust totaling $1,141,000. Apparently, the seller's agent was aware of the encumbrances but did not disclose them to the buyers. After signing the agreement, the buyers sold their existing home so they would be able to complete their impending purchase. They then learned that the seller could not convey clear title because the property was vastly over-encumbered. The transaction failed. The buyers sued the broker and her brokerage firm.

The brokers moved the trial court to dismiss the case saying that real estate statutes prevented the agent from disclosing the seller's confidential financial information. The trial court ruled in favor of the brokers, saying that the buyers might have a claim against the sellers but they did not have a claim against the seller's agent. The buyers appealed.

On appeal, the lower decision was reversed. The buyers argued that the brokers advertised the property at a price of $749,000 when they knew that the property could not be sold at that price unless the seller paid off the encumbrances--which was unlikely. The buyers believed the brokers knew or should have known that the encumbrances presented a higher risk than a routine residential sales transaction and that the escrow would not close. Therefore, the buyers argued, the brokers were obligated to disclose the substantial existing debt.

The brokers argued that the state's real estate confidentiality laws prohibit a seller's agent from revealing to either party any confidential information obtained from the other party. They said the seller's agent was only obligated to: exercise diligent reasonable skill and care; to deal honestly, fairly and in good faith; and to disclose all facts known to the agent which materially affect the value or desirability of the property. According to the brokers, that obligation did not require the agent to reveal the encumbrances on the property. The agent believed the encumbrances to be confidential financial information which she could not reveal.

The Court of Appeal said that the seller's agent had a duty to act fairly towards the buyers. Under these circumstances 'acting fairly' required the agent to disclose that either lender approval or a substantial seller payment would be required in order to close escrow and that the sale was at high risk of failure. The confidentiality provisions of the law did not exempt the agent from the duty to disclose. The seller's agent was obligated to make the disclosures in order to protect the buyers from harm and to provide them with sufficient information to make a wise purchasing decision. Of note: the court said, even though the buyers were to receive various title documents prior to closing that might disclose the existence of the liens, the documents would not necessarily reveal all of the existing debts. Since the contract called for the seller to deliver the property free and clear of encumbrances, the broker had a duty to disclose the known encumbrances before the purchase agreement was executed.

How does this decision affect Montana licensees? Strictly speaking, the California court has no jurisdiction over Montana licensees and the relevant California law is slightly different. However, the decision is instructive for how a case might be decided in Montana if the Montana case involved similar facts and similar laws. The facts are up to you. But what does Montana law say?

In Montana, an 'adverse material fact' is a fact that should be recognized as being of enough significance as to affect a person's decision to buy or sell property. Similar to California, Montana law provides that a seller agent is obligated to act in good faith with a buyer and a buyer agent.

The seller agent is required to disclose to the buyer any adverse material facts that concern the property and that are known to the seller agent. It is true that a Montana seller agent is not required to inspect the property or to verify any statements made by the seller. However, because the seller agent is not required to inspect or verify, the seller agent is obligated to tell the buyers when the seller agent has no personal knowledge of the veracity of any information regarding adverse material facts. MCA 37-51-313(3).

Likewise, a Montana dual agent is obligated to act as a seller agent for the seller and act as a buyer agent for the buyer except that a dual agent has a duty to disclose to a buyer or seller any adverse material facts that are known to the dual agent regardless of any confidentiality considerations (unless the client tells the agent in writing that certain information is to be kept confidential).

Incidentally, under Montana law, an 'adverse material fact' could also be one that materially affects the buyer's ability to perform under a proposed or existing contract. The California case was only about the seller agent. What would the California court have said if it applied Montana law to a situation where a buyer agent knew the buyer would not be able to close due to financial considerations? Much of the California court's underlying rationale might remain the same.

Certainly, whether we are talking about a seller agent or a dual agent, it seems likely that if the California court had applied Montana law to the facts of the case before them, the result would have been the same. It is no stretch to imagine that a Montana court would make the same decision. What decision will you make?

The California case is Holmes v. Summer, 188 Cal. App. 4th 1510, 116 Cal. Rptr. 3d 419 (2010).

DISCIPLINARY ACTION (May-October 2010)

All disciplinary action is now reported in the newsletter

Thomas Tibbles #2008-006-RRE

On August 8, 2006, a couple made an offer to purchase property near Flathead Lake in Big Arm, Montana. The property was listed by Mr. Tibbles; he and his wife, Carol Tibbles, were both listed as brokers to contact for more information in advertisements for the property. The buyers filed a complaint with the Board of Realty Regulation alleging that the property was variously represented by Mr. Tibbles as "lakefront," "waterfront," and "lake shore," and they therefore purchased the property with the understanding that the property extended to the waterline of Flathead Lake. Instead, after purchase, they discovered that that portion of the shoreline between the waterline and their property was publicly owned. After an investigation, the Screening Panel of the Board of Realty Regulation found reasonable cause to believe that Mr. Tibbles violated the following statutes and/or administrative rules: MCA 37-1-316(5), MCA 37-1-316(18), MCA 37-51-313(3)(a), MCA 37-51-313(3)(c), MCA 37-51-313(12) and ARM24.210.641(5)(i).

Licensee's license is currently on inactive status. He shall not return his current license to active status until January 1, 2012. Licensee's broker license expires October 31, 2010. Licensee shall not renew his broker license before or after its 2010 expiration date until January 1, 2010. If Mr. Tibbles renews his license on or after January 1, 2012, he shall renew his license to active status and comply with all the requirements of renewal, including late fees and continuing education. His license will then be placed on probation for one year from the date he becomes active. If Mr. Tibbles does not renew his license by October 31, 2012, his license will terminate as provided in MCA 37-1-141.

Carol Tibbles #2008-005-RRE

In 2007, a complaint was filed against Carol Tibbles, Montana Real Estate Broker #11350, alleging she represented property purchased in Big Arm, Montana, in August 2006, as "lakefront," "waterfront," and "lake shore," in advertisements when, in fact, the shoreline of that portion of Flathead Lake between the waterline and the property purchased was publicly owned. After an investigation, the Screening Panel of the Board of Realty Regulation found reasonable cause to believe Ms. Tibbles violated the following statutes and/or administrative rules: MCA 37-1-316(5), MCA 37-1-316(18), MCA 37-51-313(3)(a), MCA 37-51-313(3)(c) and ARM24.210.641(5)(i).

Licensee agreed that she shall be publically censured for the violations noted above. Licensee's license will be placed on probation for one year for the date of entry of the Final Order. Ms. Tibbles will be required to complete eight hours of board-approved continuing education in the area of advertising and disclosures and an additional four hours of board-approved continuing education in the area of ethics. Licensee will have one year from the date of entry of the Final Order to complete the education. The education cannot count as part of her annually required continuing education.

Thomas Tibbles #2009-031-RRE

On September 25, 2008, the Board of Realty Regulation filed a complaint against Mr. Tibbles alleging that he had not returned the license of a salesperson who had been working under him to the Board of Realty Regulation when the salesperson left his supervision. Mr. Tibbles also allegedly did not provide a statement of his salesperson's activities until more than ninety days after the salesperson's request.

DISCIPLINARY ACTION (May-October 2010) Con't

The Screening Panel of the Board of Realty Regulation found reasonable cause to believe Mr. Tibbles violated the following statutes and/or administrative rules: ARM 24.210.601(1), ARM 24.210.601(2) and ARM 24.210.601(3).

Licensee's license is currently on inactive status. He shall not return his current license to active status until January 1, 2012. Licensee's broker license expires October 31, 2010. Licensee shall not renew his broker license before or after its 2010 expiration date until January 1, 2010. If Mr Tibbles renews his license on or after January 1, 2012, he shall renew his license to active status and comply with all the requirements of renewal, including late fees and continuing education. His license will then be placed on probation for one year from the date he becomes active. If Mr. Tibbles does not renew his license by October 31, 2012, his license will terminate as provided in MCA 37-1-141.

If Mr. Tibbles does renew his license or applies for a new real estate license, he will not be eligible for a supervising broker endorsement and shall not supervise real estate salesperson until after January 1, 2014.

Jerry Ehlers #2009-045-RRE

On November 13, 2008, the Board of Realty Regulation Screening Panel reviewed an audit of licensees's property management trust account and found Mr. Ehlers violated the following statutes and/or administrative rules: ARM 24.210.828, ARM 24.210.805(1), (4), (8), (10)(c), (10)(d), (11) and (12).

Licensee shall, within one year, successfully complete a continuing education course: "Trust Accounting for Property Management." Licensee shall contact Marilyn Willson, Board of Realty Regulation Auditor, to register for the course.

Brian Skinn #2010-0668-RRE

On March 9, 2010, the Board of Realty Regulation filed a complaint against Mr. Skinn alleging that Mr. Skinn pled guilty to charges of felony burglary and theft of prescription drugs. It was alleged that Mr. Skinn used his position as a real estate licensee to enter a home for sale, where he was recorded on video camera rummaging in drawers and closets and stealing prescription drugs. The Screening Panel of the Board of Realty Regulation found reasonable cause to believe Mr. Skinn violated the following statutes and/or administrative rules: MCA 37-51-321(1)(s), MCA 37-1-316(1), MCA 37-1-316(13) and MCA 37-1-316(18).

Mr. Skinn's salesperson's license is suspended from the date of the Final Order until March 22, 2011. He has been on inactive status since March 22, 2010. After the suspension period, his license shall be placed on probation for a period of three years.

Jeffrey Bond #2010-073-RRE

On March 12, 2010, the Board of Realty Regulation filed a complaint alleging that Mr. Bond had failed to complete the 4-hour supervising broker course to maintain his supervising broker endorsement after October 31, 2010. Mr. Bond also allegedly refused to transfer any salespersons under his supervision to another supervising broker by March 10, 2010, as he was instructed to do per a letter dated February 17, 2010. The Screening Panel found reasonable cause to believe Mr. Bond violated the following statutes and/or administrative rules: ARM 24.210.604(3), ARM 24.210.604(6), MCA 37-1-141 and MCA 37-1-316(18).
